Are you converting from 2/1 to cabling? Do your pots have slots in the bottom even though you are cabling?

These linings are an insert that covers the bottom of the pot and extends up the side to cover up the ports (holes) in the pot bottom. The holes in the pot bottom are to keep the pot clean when running the twister as a two for one. When running the twister as a cabler, these holes need to be covered. This prevents the foam pad cushion from pushing out the holes which will cause end breaks and can also contaminate the yarn. The foam pad is necessary for the feed package to sit on so the yarn does not fall off the package and cause end breaks. These cover linings are the easiest and cheapest way to eliminate these problems!
